Participants move from an apartment on the Decatur campus to their own apartment in the community where they have the opportunity to "transition" into adulthood. The purpose of the program is to allow young adults to live in their own community-based home while continuing to participate in a structured program that teaches and supports the continued development of essential life skills. We encourage each participant to use the services provided to them and become aware of their own natural gifts and talents. The ILP gives young adults the tools needed to strive
